

Handwritten text on a palm leaf manuscript strip, featuring multiple lines of script and two prominent red horizontal lines.

Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with several lines of handwritten text in a cursive script. The text is written in dark ink on a brown, fibrous surface. A prominent red line is drawn across the middle of the fragment, possibly indicating a section or a correction. The edges of the papyrus are frayed and irregular.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, possibly Pahlavi or Sogdian, on a long, narrow, aged parchment strip. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. A prominent red line is drawn across the middle of the strip, crossing through several lines of text. The parchment is heavily worn, with frayed edges and significant discoloration. The script is dense and appears to be a form of cursive or semi-cursive. The red line is drawn with a fine needle and thread, creating a sharp contrast with the brown parchment.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Pāli, on a palm leaf manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines across the length of the leaf. The script is dark and appears to be a form of Brahmic script. The leaf shows signs of age, with some wear and tear at the edges.

